

La Crosse Man Arrested After Interfering in Different Arrest

Monday, 07 November 2011 10:42

A La Crosse guy put up a heckuva fight this week-end, but still wound up in the back of a squad car, with taser probes in his back and a spit hood on his head. Police say Shawn Xiong wasn't even the guy they were after when they responded to a domestic throw-down on Saturday night. But, they say, he was drunk and belligerent and causing problems, so they pulled out the handcuffs. But Xiong didn't want to go quietly. A scuffle ensued. They tumbled down some stairs. They tased him. Three times. Finally got him in the back of a squad. And he spit in a cop's eye. Thus the spit hood. Xiong faces a number of charges.