

Here Come The Carp

Wednesday, 07 March 2012 22:01

In the latest sign that invasive Asian carp are penetrating Minnesota waters, a silver carp and a big head carp were netted by commercial fishermen last week in the Mississippi River near Winona. Tim Schlagenhaft of the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources.

The catch represents the farthest upstream discovery yet of the flying carp, known for leaping from the water when startled. The silver carp, which was caught March 1st, weighed 8 pounds.