

A solution to an Oktoberfest dilemma could be reached today. Representatives from the fest board and the city meet to discuss thousands of dollars in new fees the city wants from the board for its parades. The board has suspended planning for its parades in response. Expectations from today's talks? We asked fest executive director, Tina Severson

Severson also wants to settle the fee issue not just for this year's fest but for upcoming years as well.