

Wisconsin Governor Scott Walker came to Springfield, Illinois Tuesday morning, to compare himself favorably to two Illinois politicians: Pat Quinn and Abraham Lincoln. As for inviting Illinois employers to move to the Badger State.....Walker was asked how many have moved out of Illinois so far.

Walker spoke to the Illinois Chamber of Commerce and let them know how great a shape this state is in now that he has made changes. The crowd outside his speech was far larger than the crowd inside, as thousands of union members protested the governor's appearance in Illinois.
