

(AP) Wisconsin's recall candidates are due to turn in another round of campaign finance reports. The candidates are required to turn in reports covering their receipts and spending from Jan. 1 through April 23 to the state Government Accountability Board by midnight Monday. The reports will be the last ones before the May 8 primary. The general election is set for June 5. Democrats are trying to oust Gov. Scott Walker and five other Republicans from office as payback for Walker's contentious law stripping most public workers of nearly all their union rights.
