

Prostitution Sting Nets Five Including Local Lawmaker

Tuesday, 28 August 2012 12:02

A La Crosse county supervisor has gotten nabbed in a prostitution sting. Police set up the sting yesterday at the northside Brookstone Inn. A fake internet ad that five guys responded to, looking to pay for sex. Among the five, county supervisor and local AFL-CIO leader Bill Brockmiller. Should make other prospective Johns have some second thoughts, says La Crosse interim police chief Rob Abraham

Brockmiller, a state labor analyst, along with the other four men will be charged with soliciting a prostitute.