

It's reasonable to get excited about Oktoberfest's signature event, the Maple Leaf parade on Saturday. Some people get a little too excited, however, setting their stuff up way ahead of time in the public right of way. And city public works director Dale Hexom dispatches big trucks to clean all that stuff up

Setting up on private property long before the parade is okay. In the right of way? You have to wait until 12 hours before the Maple Leaf starts rolling.
