

Danou Hopes To Avoid Veto Of Raw Milk Bill

Monday, 26 April 2010 11:56

A plan to let people in Wisconsin sell raw milk has been passed by lawmakers...but will it actually be signed?

Democratic rep Chris Danou of Trempealeau believes Governor Doyle will sign it, instead of using his veto. Danou says if enough opposition to raw milk leads to a veto by the governor, that might kill the idea for a while. But he thinks the bill is 'well-crafted,' and enjoys bi-partisan support.