

Onalaska Woman Flirts with Responsibility, Goes Other Direction

Monday, 17 May 2010 17:48

An Onalaska woman certainly started out doing the responsible thing on Friday. But things kind of got out of hand after calling a friend to get a ride home after she'd been drinking. Cops say Stella Kruse was getting a ride from La Crosse in the early morning hours when she started beating on the woman driving. Then she grabbed the car's steering wheel, and the car wound up in someone's yard. And then Stella took off running. With the keys to the car. Cops say they found her trying to get into a stranger's house. Stella was drunk. Stella was incoherent. And Stella barely missed the groin of one cop with a poorly aimed kick. She was arrested on several charges.