

How much does the public need to know about a man who committed a triple murder 25 years ago?

That question is at the heart of a La Crosse County court hearing tomorrow, about the release of Bryan Stanley. Relatives of the priest and two other men killed by Stanley were NOT told last year when he was released from Mendota hospital. The county sheriff's office said it forgot to inform the families. The La Crosse Tribune says the sealed records should be open to assure the public that Stanley is NOT likely to commit more crimes. Stanley's attorney wants that request dismissed.
