

A UW-L residence life student work crew is looking both strong and sustainable.....after sending about 700 tons of UW-L bed frames to recycling. Each crew member averaged about 67 tons of lifting, carrying and throwing during seven days last week. That according to Doug Kuenn, assistant director of Residence Life. So when does the new, solid oak bed lofting system for residence halls construction begin?

\(Click for Audio\)

This means students will no longer need to rent bed lofts nor will they be moved around campus at the start and end of the school year.