

Among the people that were shot at a public appearance by an Arizona Representative Saturday, were friends and constituents of Gabby Giffords. So will that deter people from going out to see elected officials now?

Senator Dan Kapanke of Lacrosse says the voting public should never be afraid of attending public functions that feature those that they voted for.

Kapanke says he will not change anything or scale back his public appearances.

He sends his prayers out to the loved ones of those killed and injured in Saturday's tragedy.
