

Stalemate in Monroe County ?

Tuesday, 15 March 2011 10:04

In the past 2 months, Monroe County has seen the plan for a million dollar fund for a Justice Center go down the drain.....a design firm's request to reevaluate plans for a new Center get shot down...and now two members of the building committee have quit. Is the entire Justice Center proposal now at a stalemate?

County Board Chair Rick Irwin says he doesn't like to call it that.

He says the board members he refers to are the ones that were seated after a recall 2 years ago to replace 8 other board members. He says they just don't see the seriousness in the need for a new jail and courthouse....though studies have shown both need replaced. When.....still anyone's guess.
