

You can say that the campaign to recall governor Walker has more or less begun. At least it has for two conservative groups in Wisconsin

That comes from a video on the ItsWorkingWisconsin website. Americans for Prosperity and the MacIver Institute have also purchased ad time in a number of markets around the state in support of the governor's actions to curtail collective bargaining for public unions in the state. A recall group say they'll begin collecting signatures to recall the governor on November 15th.
