

Crews Look For Apparent Bridge Jumper

Thursday, 22 December 2011 05:31

Somebody may have jumped from a La Crosse bridge last night. Or they may not have. La Crosse police says they will search this morning for someone who may have jumped from the Cameron Street Bridge.

It started last night after someone told police that they found an empty car on the bridge and a coat was found hanging on the guardrail just before 8. The La Crosse Fire Department and the Dive and Rescue Teams were searching the water and area until around 9:30 last night and found nothing.

They will be back at it again at 9 a.m this morning.