

Northside Bar Robbed at Gunpoint

Monday, 09 January 2012 11:55

Police don't have a suspect yet in a robbery at a bar on the northside. Cops say a guy with his face wrapped in a black scarf pointed a gun at the bartender at Fishes bar just before midnight on Saturday. "It's cold outside," the crook said, "give me all your money." The robber got away with hundreds. Police are looking for a shorter white guy in his twenties. They might have had more information but the security video system at the bar isn't working.
