

There are some things that just seem to make more sense when you've been drinking heavily. Which might explain the actions of four young guys this week-end in La Crosse. Apparently all of them hammered, three of them underage. Came back to the Vine street apartment of one of the guys early morning Saturday. But on the way, amused themselves by kicking in the doors of several other apartments. Scared several people and destroyed doors and doorframes. They arrested three, still looking for the fourth guy.
