

No Baby in That Stroller

Monday, 13 February 2012 20:22

You can understand the concern of those who witnessed the three teens out late at night pushing a baby stroller in LaCrosse. A 19 year-old and a couple of middle schoolers near the Walgreen's around midnight on a Friday looked drunk. And they were, say police, once they tracked the trio down. They were also suspected of shoplifting from the all night drug store. Police found a purse full of stolen make-up. In the stroller, under a blanket, not a baby. But three packs of frozen chicken.