A week ago, he was facing a possible prison term for attempted robbery...

Now, Jadin Botcher of La Crosse is charged with trespass with a dangerous weapon, for his alleged role in a home break-in. Botcher originally was accused of threatening a La Crosse woman with a golf club...but his attorney, Russell Hammer, says the victim asked for the robbery charge to be dropped because Botcher never actually entered the home. Botcher's bail of 20-thousand dollars was reduced to a signature bond. Charges against three other men in the same case also have been reduced.
