

Didn't take long for La Crosse police to solve a broken window mystery downtown. Last week, police posted a video from a phone on the department's facebook page of a drunken guy walking away from where he punched out a big window in the Doerflinger building. On Saturday, the building's owner called cops to let them know that Ryan Lucchesi called him to offer to pay for the window and clean-up. Later, Lucchesi told cops he was out celebrating his 21st birthday and simply made a mistake.