

Onalaska City Planner Deena Murphy has been knee deep in the budgeting for the upcoming construction of the Great River Cultural and Tourism Center. And before the tourism board and city council approved additional funding for the project, she said they had to scale back quite a bit of what they wanted in the center.

Both the board and council approved an additional $894 thousand for the project. Construction is slated to begin in 2013.