

Suspects Sought in La Crosse Robberies

Monday, 18 June 2012 10:11

Police are still looking for suspects in robberies and attempts reported in La Crosse this week-end. There was the woman who was attacked when she went to her car at four in the morning on King street downtown. She got hurt when the thief stomped on her foot and slammed her head into her car but he ran off before stealing anything. Another guy took a little time to report a robbery that happened in the middle of last week. He says he was attacked by about ten guys after a confrontation downtown at bartime. They got his phone and some cash and gave him a good beating in return. A couple with children were attacked in their southside home on Sunday evening and fought with the home invaders before driving them away and calling police.
