

The state DNR plans to issue five times more licenses to hunt wolves than the harvest number, predicting that hunters will have a 20 percent success rate. That's the plans when details on a hunt are released next month. Fort McCoy Biologist, Tim Wilder is glad the DNR has stepped forward to control the wolf population.

[WOLF 4 is unavailable]

Fort McCoy has a growing number of wolves and it keeps on growing. Wilder's not sure whether people will be able to hunt them there.