

Are The Crops Really That Bad

Friday, 03 August 2012 09:48

We keep hearing about how the drought has killed off quite a bit of crops in Wisconsin....but if you drive to one area and see high corn and the next field is brown.....what gives.

Pam Jahnke with the Wisconsin Farm Report says it all depends on what type of soil the crops are in....location and how much rain certain parts of the state have had. She admits though.....there's more bad then good out there in the fields.
