

Cold pills, ammonia, and drain cleaner...

Tell-tale ingredients for a meth lab. And that stuff was found inside an address on Farnam Street in La Crosse this week...along with some meth being cooked, and some already made. Eight people are facing charges so far. Investigator Fritz Leinfelder for La Crosse County says purchases of cold medicine led police to some of the suspects.

Leinfelder says even if less meth is being produced in Wisconsin, it's still being brought into the state from Chicago, Minneapolis, or elsewhere.
