

Receiving steroids for treatment of back pain has turned into something completely different for nearly 300 people around the country. The Centers for Disease Control says the national meningitis outbreak is up to 297 people overall, with 23 deaths now reported. In Wisconsin, still no reported cases.....good news says Gunderson Lutheran's, Bridget Paff. Though they are still giving the treatments.

\(Click for Audio\)

Seven people in Minnesota have the fungal meningitis but there have been no deaths there.