

Among the many drunk drivers La Crosse police have had to deal with recently, one southside guy has collected his very first. At 87 years old. They've got a witness who saw the octagenarian late at night gun his car up over a boulevard and into a tree. And then juice it in reverse and slam in to a truck parked on the street. The impacts were enough to deploy airbags in his car. On the breathalyzer, they say he blew just over the legal limit for driving.
