

Military suicides, particularly with those soldiers in the Army, rose 80% from 2004 and 2008. Dr. Timothy Lineberry, a Mayo Clinic psychiatrist, an Air Force veteran and a suicide prevention expert for the Army says even this year, the numbers are on the rise.

\(Click for Audio\)

To date, the Army has confirmed 120 suicides for both active and non active duty soldiers in 2012 with 67 other deaths suspected as suicides, but still under investigation.