

Students admitting to urinating in Logan High School sinks, selling drugs to students and teachers and having sex in the high school were all found posted on a Facebook page this week. Principal Scott Mihalovic contacted Facebook and the page was taken down. Only to re-appear the next day. Superintendent, Randy Nelson was advised of the postings and said it sickened him.

The postings, including one from a teacher who said they sold drugs to kids years ago, were all written anonymously meaning school staffers will have a hard time identifying the individuals or those that started the Facebook Page. Similar pages were made for Onalaska and Tomah High Schools as well as a UW-L confessions page.
