

Fowler And Hammer Gets Contract For Campbell Library Building

Wednesday, 20 March 2013 08:57

They have a winning bid...

The Campbell Town Board has chosen Fowler and Hammer to convert a former church into a new town library. Town administrator Chad Hawkins says the bid of 170-thousand dollars was about three thousand dollars higher than the low bid for the project. Four companies competed to remodel the inside of the building on Lakeshore Drive. The county library branch is being moved out of the Campbell town hall to provide more space for a community room and storage.