

Police Reserve Catches Another at Riverside Park

Monday, 07 June 2010 12:27

La Crosse police reserves are once again on the case in Riverside Park. Summertime shifts for Operation Riverwatch belong mostly to reserves because the college student-led organization loses most of its volunteers during summer months. A police reserve was the one who nabbed a Galesville guy this week-end in the park before he could get in any trouble. The 21 year-old was stumbling drunk in the park early Saturday morning near bar time when he was spotted by a reserve who then hailed a nearby officer. The guy thought he was near Myrick Park and UWL and was looking for a duplex. Pretty solidly drunk, says the officer, who handed the guy his first public intoxication warning.