

Still plenty of obstacles before a plan to revitalize the area around Gundersen Lutheran in La Crosse can come to fruition. The city council approved an extensive plan last week. But the Gundersen board also has to approve. Investors have to be willing to play along. And then there's just the organization of the whole thing, says Neighborhood Revitalization Commission chair, Sarah Sullivan

\(Click for Audio\)

Among the recommendations approved by the city council is a plan to improve several parks in the area, including Hood park which is also up for a renaming by the city.