

Remember the warm, sunny weather during the Oktoberfest Maple Leaf Parade last fall?

That was the last day La Crosse had temperatures over 80 degrees...September 29th. This afternoon, the mercury in La Crosse could reach 80 again, for the first time in seven months. After the 60-degree barrier was finally cracked on Friday, the city has had highs in the 70's for four straight days. But the warm spell should end soon. The National Weather Service is now predicting the return of snow, maybe up to an inch, on Thursday in La Crosse, with a high around 40.