

Lingering Effects From La Crosse Tornado Two Years Ago

Tuesday, 21 May 2013 10:00

As the assessment and clean-up begins in Moore, Oklahoma after a massive and deadly tornado there, La Crosse prepares to mark two years since a tornado tore through the southside. And full recovery has yet to happen. That EF-2 tornado on May 22nd 2011 caused around 10 million dollars in damage, including to the Bakalars sausage plant on the southside. The company has since made a move to the city's industrial park but the future of the old plant is still in question.