

Cain Moss Drug Homicide Trial Begins Monday

Sunday, 16 June 2013 20:34

Nearly two years have passed since a man's body was found near a north La Crosse park.

The August 2011 death of Tony DuCharme led to several arrests. Three defendants have been convicted of felonies, and a trial begins today for a fourth suspect, Cain Moss. He's charged with reckless homicide, and hiding a corpse. Attorneys for Moss are preparing to argue during the trial that a man who sold drugs to Moss should be held responsible for DuCharme's overdose death.
