Scores of people in a southside La Crosse neighborhood are pushing back against city hall plans for traffic calming on a busy street. Ron Egge is at the head of a petition drive to stop planned speed bumps for 33rd street during a makeover of the street this summer. Not the best way to slow down traffic on the street, says Egge

The city has planned the changes to 33rd for a couple of years. Egge says neighbors in the area weren't adequately informed.
