

Attorney General J-B Van Hollen said a new budget measure on police collecting DNA samples left some holes in the program and police will be confused about whether to send DNA samples to the state. La Crosse Police Sergeant, Randy Rank says his officers see no problem with the measure.

\(Click for Audio\)

Right now, only convicted felons and major sex offenders have their DNA placed in the database.