Just because you're related to a dentist, doesn't mean you necessarily know dentistry. But that didn't stop 36 year-old Curtis Baltz from practicing some impromptu tooth care on a stranger. Cops say Baltz stopped at a coffee shop in downtown La Crosse on Sunday night and pulled a loose tooth from a boy sitting outside with his mom. When cops tracked him down later, the drunken Baltz said his father and grandfather were both dentists so he knew what he was doing.