

New employee handbooks will replace collective bargaining agreements this fall throughout Wisconsin. It's because of Act 10, the new law that limits collective bargaining for school employees. In Sparta, Superintendent, John Hendricks says though the books are have been written, they are not done yet.

\(Click for Audio\)

Hendricks says over the past year, the school board and employees worked together to fashion new handbooks based on expiring collective bargaining agreements.