

Two local stock car racers apparently are having a hard time keeping their competition on the track. Cops say Megan Urch and Melissa Rusch, former competitors at the La Crosse speedway, got into it at a parts store parking lot this week-end. One of them got pepper sprayed, the other collected several scratches. Police say they've been in an ongoing argument over a wreck at the track earlier this year. Both were arrested on minor charges.