

Sex Offender May Be Sent To Hospital

No freedom yet for Randy Poff...

A La Crosse judge says there is probable cause to commit Poff to a hospital as a 'sexually violent' person. Poff was supposed to be released from prison this month, after serving time for sex offenses, but the state Justice Department says he would be likely to commit more sex crimes if released into the community. Judge Todd Bjerke agreed, after hearing a report from a forensic psychologist who studied Poff. A jury trial will be scheduled, to decide whether the 39-year-old La Crosse County man should be committed.
