

Democrats and republicans getting friendly in Washington? Wisconsin republican senator Ron Johnson seems to believe that's possible. In remarks at the first meeting of a special budget committee this week, Johnson says the parties have in common the desire for Americans to be prosperous

\(Click for Audio\)

Johnson says the committee, formed to come up with budget solutions in order to avoid another government shutdown, will first have to accept that the United States enormous debt burden is a problem for the nation.