

State consumer protection officials and the Better Business Bureau are out with a host of tips to make sure the gifts you buy today online get to your loved ones and that you're not scammed now, and in the future. Kimberly Hazen is with the Wisconsin Better Business Bureau.

\(Click for Audio\)

She also reminds buyers to be aware when buying things at sites like E-Bay and Craigslist. You should research the sale items, keep a paper trail, and use credit cards so you can be protected financially. Those who believe they're scammed should contact local police, their banks, and the state's consumer protection agency.