

Among the bills that the Wisconsin state senate isn't likely to consider is one that guys like Mike McCabe won't shed tears over. Mike McCabe, head of the watchdog Wisconsin Democracy Campaign, is plenty pleased the senate won't vote on the bipartisan assembly proposal that would, among other things, double campaign contribution limits in state elections

\(Click for Audio\)

The senate majority leader has also said measures to raise the state speed limit, further restrict abortions and change academic standards also won't likely get a vote.