

Western Wisconsin job seekers may want to look in their own backyard for that next job. Onalaska was voted the third best city in the state to find a job, that according to the consumer advocacy website, Nerdwallet. Jean Lunde with the tourism department in the city says it's good news.

\(Click for Audio\)

The study reports that one key to living and working in Onalaska is that the city has lower monthly homeowner costs than their top two picks, Oconomowoc and Fitchburg.