

Within minutes of the start of a State of the Union address tonight, the President will offer his assessment, almost always positive, of where America stands. Which area does he start with? Senator Tammy Baldwin told us where she hopes it goes.

\(Click for Audio\)

Baldwin says she hopes Obama's speech will set the stage for Senate and House candidates to confront Republicans on issues such as the minimum wage, unemployment benefits and access to college education.