

The Wisconsin Assembly could vote in less than a week on Governor Scott

Walker's half billion dollar tax cut plan. State lawmaker, Steve Doyle says he likes some of what's in the plan...just not sure about voting so soon though.

\(Click for Audio\)

But majority Senate Republicans don't have the votes to approve the tax cuts Walker announced two weeks ago. That's because it would increase the deficit at the start of the next budget by 100 million dollars and senators from both parties want the structural deficit addressed first.