

In passing domestic abuse bills into law this week, Governor Scott Walker said the legislation will offer more tools so the system doesn't fail victims of domestic abuse. The most significant change requires people who are served with temporary restraining orders to be notified that they must surrender their firearms. Anne Kaphoff with La Crosse's New Horizons shelter says abuse victims are as young as 18.....though more cases are reported the older a person gets.

\(Click for Audio\)

Walker signed three domestic violence related bills into law on Wednesday.