

Been awhile since we've heard about anyone being drunk and stumbling through

Riverside Park.....but it happens more then you think. That was one observation Catherine Kolkmeier, director of the La Crosse Medical Science Consortium, saw as she and a group of 20 took a walk from UW-L to downtown late Friday night.

\(Click for Audio\)

Kohlkmire's group has started brainstorming ideas to change a very deepiled rooted drinking culture. ONE that she saw from campus to the downtown area.