

Two area military bases sent a contingent of military personnel to Gunderson Health System in La Crosse Thursday to discuss sexual assaults in the military. Gunderson Therapist Janis Elder was lead in the conversations and tells us exactly what was discussed.

\(Click for Audio\)

She says some of the objectives discussed included examining the issue of sexual violence in the military and the Department of Defense's response, identifying military resources and examining their roles and responsibilities and to compare and contrast military and civilian justice systems.